Builders Have Spring Fever

The issuing of a permit for Purity Foods' $193,000 market and four more for dwellings brought the valuation of construction scheduled in March to $275,965.

The building inspector issued another 20 permits for additions and alterations valued at $104,250.

Significant among these was a permit for a $75,000 addition to Karl Killorin's property at 77 Main St., a site under discussion as an expansion for the Shaw property which is the planned location for the new town hall. The Chamber

Uniform Purchasing Methods Bowen Goal

Tighter controls on purchasing and inventory are in the offing as the manager readies new order forms and a procedures manual.

Effective May 1, all municipal purchases of non-bid items worth more than a total of $10 will be certified by the manager and the town accountant, and all deliveries vouched for on a "goldenrod" sheet signed by the vendor.

What Manager Richard Bowen is after is documentation for every purchase.

In theory, purchase requisitions are supposed to clear the manager under present procedures, but out of long-habit some department heads submit requisitions for routine and necessary items after the fact.

Department heads will still have the authority to make small, one-of-a-kind purchases, but at the end of the month they will be expected to compile a purchase order for such items. Supporting the order will be vouchers signed by merchants at the time of purchase, instead of their bills which now come in as the informal record of these small transactions, Bowen said. The same procedure will apply to the keeping of records on deliveries of such contract items as fuel.

The top copy of the multi-paged purchase order will carry the town accountant's certification that the

Stuart Name Retained But Production Moved

Two weeks ago F. W. Stuart Co., shoe last manufacturer, released 20 employees and in four to six weeks will move its five remaining production workers to a plant in Stoughton, Mass.

This is quite a different plan of action than that announced by Vulcan Corp. of Cincinnati, Ohio when it acquired the Stuart firm last December. Proposed then was an expansion in Andover, including construction of an extrusion plant for the production of plastic lasts.

In the interim, says President Kenneth E. Holmes, Vulcan has purchased the stock of the George E. Belcher Co. in Stoughton where there are already physical facilities for immediate installation of extrusion equipment and the full wood last production of both Brockton and Andover plants.

The Stuart name, recognized in the shoe industry for its production of lasts for leading fashion houses, will be retained with Belcher producing under contract for the firm, now essentially a sales organization. Holmes, who has represented the company in fashion markets, will continue with this function.

An Andover resident, Holmes said this week he plans to maintain his home here. Alexander A. Stuart son of the firm's founder and president of the firm prior to Vulcan's acquisition, will semi-retire to his native Beverly. He plans to open a

ANDOVER CO-OP

$63,092 6% Shareholders
94% Shoppers

To know that the Andover CO-OP distributed $63,092 last week is to know only part of the truth. To know how this local bonanza was divided is to know the whole truth — to know how a consumers' cooperative works.

The sum of $63,092 was divided two ways because our beneficiaries wear two hats, even though they are usually one and the same person.

As shareholders and owners of the CO-OP, they received our regular 5% dividend. This amounted to $3878 or about 6% of the total payoff.

As shoppers and patrons of the CO-OP, they received a 4.3% CASH refund on all their 1964 purchases. This amounted to $59,214 or about 94% of the total payoff.

Why this apparent disproportion? Because a consumers' cooperative exists primarily to serve people's interests as consumers, and therefore distributes its net earnings primarily to people in their role as consumers. That is why so many consumers love to shop CO-OP. Here, the consumer is king (and queen).

HAROLD T. KING

King With Bell For 35th Year

Harold T. King, chairman of the Andover Planning Board, celebrates his 35th service anniversary with Bell Telephone Laboratories this month. He is a supervisor in the radio transmission laboratory at the company's Merrimack Valley works in North Andover.

King joined Bell Laboratories in New York City in 1930. He later transferred to the company's Murray Hill, N.J., location. Throughout his telephone career he has specialized in the development of high frequency wire line telephone systems. He transferred to the Merrimack Valley branch laboratory at the time of its inception in 1956 and during the past several years has been engaged in the development of short haul microwave radio systems.

From 1941 through 1945 King served in the field artillery, spending two years in the European Theater of operations as an executive officer and then as a commanding officer of a heavy artillery battalion, returning to civilian life as a Lt. Colonel. He was awarded the Bronze Star medal.

A native of Brooklyn, N. Y., King received a B. A. degree in physics and mathematics cum laude from Harvard University in 1930.

He is a director of the Massachusetts Federation of Planning Boards. He is also a director of the Andover Consumers Cooperative, a past president and director of the Boston Men's Garden Club and a member of the Holly Society of America.

Square Dancers Meeting Friday

Friday at 7:30 p.m. The Twilight Twirler Square Dance Club will hold its annual business meeting and election of officers at Central School.

Saturday the club will meet at 8 p.m. at Andover Grange for its monthly dance for which Mal Cameron of the Border City Squares, Nashua, N. H., and the Twirling T'n T's, Manchester, N. H., will be guest caller.

The teenage square dancers will skip their weekly dance Good Friday, meeting instead on April 23 at Andover Grange at 8 p.m. Bob Baillie will be the caller.

Sixty-four members of the local group were among the three thousand adults and teens who attended the New England Square Dance Convention in Manchester, N. H., last weekend.

At the convention the members saw a demonstration of square dancers in wheelchairs and several earned Square Duck badges by square dancing in a pool. New Hampshire Governor John W. King made an official visit to the convention for which Don Scott of Andover was general chairman.

Literary Leprechaun Will Speak At Abbot

Ulick O'Connor, an Irishman who has been dubbed a "Leprechaun of Letters", will speak at Abbot Academy's Davis Hall at 8 p.m. Saturday. His topic: "Ireland, the First of the New Nations."

Referred to as a master of a wit as sharp and dry as a pint o'bitters, O'Connor is a poet, biographer, drama critic, journalist, criminal lawyer, champion athlete and ventriloquist.

At 34 his literary accomplishments have begun to snowball. He has had two volumes of poetry published, and his recent biography, "The Times I've Seen - A Biography of Oliver St. John Gogarty," was on the New York Times best-seller list within two weeks of its publication.

Drama critic in Ireland for The Times of London since 1956, he has contributed articles on Irish drama and on theatre and ballet from Gibraltar, Brussels and Hollywood. O'Connor received his degree in Philosophy at the national University of Ireland. He studied post-graduate Law at Loyola University in New Orleans, where he also received a diploma in dramatic literature. O'Connor has lectured at the University of Stockholm, ULICK O'CONNOR as well as in Rome, London and Paris. Donning yet another hat, as a practicing barrister, he became state prosecutor for the West of Ireland at age 26. In recent years he has appeared in some of the leading cases in Ireland.

A television personality at home and abroad, O'Connor has written and broadcast his own program on the B.B.C. He made a recent appearance on the Johnny Carson show in this country and has been invited to many others. Abbot invites the public to attend O'Connor's lecture.

Auto Liability A Loss Leader

Auto liability has become the "loss leader" of insurance, producing heavy under-writing losses in the past decade according to the Journal of American Insurance.

"After earning $33.3 billion in auto liability premiums in a highly competitive market, after administering these funds on behalf of their policyholders, and after paying more than 63 million claims, the auto insurance industry showed an underwriting loss of $865.7 million on the liability portion of auto insurance" in the decade 1954-63, said the Journal, publication of the American Mutual Insurance Alliance. Last year was the "poorest year for property-liability insurance since 1906, the year of the San Francisco earthquake," the Journal added.

The Journal pinpointed these factors which helped push up the cost of auto accidents and, in turn, the cost of auto liability insurance since 1954:

- Traffic congestion is much worse, greatly increasing the accident odds. Licensed drivers have increased from 72.2 million to 93.7 million. Registered vehicles are up from 57.9 million to 86.1 million. And vehicle-miles driven soared from 560 billion to more than 900 billion annually.

- Property-damage accidents have increased from 8.7 million in 1954 to more than 11 million a year. Bodily injuries jumped from 1.25 million to 1.65 million. Traffic deaths increased from 36,000 to 47,900.

- The average insurance payment per claim has been rising steadily. In 1954 an average bodily injury claim cost $966; in 1963 the average was $1,156 - an increase of 20 per cent. The average property damage claim rose more than twice as much - from $124 in 1954 to $185 in 1963, an increase of 49 per cent.

These claims costs have been pushed upward by inflation in all the factors which determine the price of auto insurance, said the Journal. Medical care costs were up 37 per cent in the 1954-63 decade, led by a rise of 57 per cent in hospital room rates. Physicians' fees rose 34 per cent.

Auto repair costs jumped 20 per cent during the decade. Moreover, the average age of cars on the road has dropped. Result: Cars involved in smash-ups tend to be newer and more expensive to repair or replace.

Auto thefts have been increasing at the phenomenal rate of about 10 per cent a year, and have become a significant factor in insurance losses under the fire-theft-windstorm (comprehensive) portion of auto insurance.

"Additional pressures on both bodily injury and property damage liability rates comes from rising jury awards. This nationwide trend is illustrated by the rise in average amounts of plaintiffs' jury verdicts before the New York Supreme Court, one of the few courts that tabulates verdict averages. From 1954 to 1963 the average plaintiff's verdict climbed from $9,478 to $12,068, a rise of 26 per cent. In many states jury verdicts have climbed because of community-wide misconceptions that such awards are ultimately met by insurance companies. In fact, the level of jury awards is a prime factor in setting home-town insurance rates. Jurors who participate in making excessive awards are giving away money which came from the insurance purchaser's pocket, as well as boosting future insurance rates," said the Journal.

IRS Shows First Center Plan

No ground breaking date has been set, but the Internal Revenue Service has announced that it plans to open its regional service center here in October, 1966.

One million square feet of space will be built on Lowell St. adjacent to the Rt. 93 access road for the single purpose of housing a process center for corporate and individual returns from New York and New England taxpayers. This will replace leased space at 8 Lake St., Lawrence.

Housed at the center will be an estimated 1,000 full-time employees and 2,000 part-time workers who are hired to handle peak loads at tax time. Parking for approximately 3,000 cars is planned.

The architect's sketch represents tentative plans for a one story structure with a courtyard separating administrative and processing areas.

Preliminary work on a solution to the drainage situation that will be created by substituting acres of covered area for the open field is underway.

Employees Elect Officers

The election of two Department of Public Works employees to top posts in the Town Employees Assoc. appears to further complicate Manager Richard Bowen's relationship with this organization.

In leadership now are men from the dissident highway employees group which has been vocal in its complaints about hourly rates to be paid men in that branch of public works under the newly adopted compensation and pay plan.

Robert Volker was elected president Monday to succeed Fire Lt. Alfred C. Derosier and Francis Bailey succeeds Theodore Surette, also a highway department worker. Edward King, a fire fighter, and Town Treasurer Anna Greeley were re-elected secretary and treasurer respectively.

The association also formalized its relationship with Atty. Irving Newman, naming him legal counsel. Newman has been serving the organization informally, on a fee basis, since before the town elections. Since he was a candidate for School Committee, the association delayed announcing his appointment.

Workers in the public works division who are dissatisfied say that some DPW men will receive less than 21/2 percent in added compensation under the new pay plan, and that some will get no increase at all.

Manager Bowen's position is that hourly workers have been better taken care of under previous pay plans than some other town employees who benefit from the reclassification, particularly supervisory level people.

He points out that the average earnings (including overtime) for DPW workers last year was $6,000. This average does not include the pay of clerical and other salaried workers, Bowen said.

Of the 50 non-salaried employees in the department, 40 percent made $6,000 or more; 41 percent made $5,000 or more, and 19 percent made under $5,000.

Up to now the manager has refused to include the association's attorney in any conferences held with town employees. Asked if Newman's official standing would make any difference in his attitude, Bowen said Wednesday: "I have no intention of abdication my responsibilities as the town's chief personnel officer to a third party."

He added that on legal matters he would consult Town Counsel and the association, which he regards as a private organization, should consult its counsel if legal matters arise.

Bowen said that as far as he can determine, the association does not represent all town employees and therefore cannot be considered a bargaining agent.

Dilemma Disrupts Council Of Churches

Word of a dilemma, responsible for a long smoldering controversy in the Andover Council of Churches, broke into the headlines last week.

On Thursday two local ministers and delegations from their churches walked out on a Council meeting after the majority voted approval for a revised constitution that has the effect of limiting active membership to churches accepting Jesus Christ as Lord and Saviour.

This move was interpreted by Rev. Keith C. Munson, pastor of the Unitarian Universalist Church, as a refusal of his application for membership. The Universalist Congregation could not accept the newly-written preamble to the Council's constitution which reads: "We, the churches of Andover, Mass., desiring to work together in areas of common concern and to declare in unison that Jesus Christ is Lord and Saviour, do hereby adopt this constitution and solemnly pledge ourselves to be governed by its provisions."

Actually, says Rev. J. Edison Pike, rector of Christ Episcopal Church and president of the Council, the issue was not so clear cut.

In the organization, and already active are delegates from Faith Lutheran Church, led by Rev. Hartland Gifford. So long as the Council ran along informally as an orthodox Christian organization, this congregation's affiliation was permitted by its body of church law. Introduction of a congregation outside the orthodox Christian family made a formal statement of the organization's essentially Christian aims a requirement for continued Lutheran membership.

Rev. Pike said this week, in the aftermath of a meeting described by one minister as "bitter and unhappy", that the matter of constitutional revision was already before the council prior to the Unitarian move from Lawrence to Andover.

He said also that the question of the argumentative preamble was brought up prior to Rev. Munson's request for membership. He did admit, however, that such a situation was anticipated.

What the council was presented with, in effect, was a decision for the Lutherans and against the Unitarians, or vice versa. Rev. Pike said the majority seemed to agree with his position that most member churches had considered they were a member of an organization with strong Christian ties. The loosely worded constitution was written when no situation existed to confuse this issue.

Rev. A. Frederic Pease Jr. of Cochran Chapel, one of those who left Thursday's meeting said afterward that he was "distressed by the original (bylaw proposal) which seemed deliberately designed to be exclusive." He objected also to the fact that Rev. Gifford was chairman of the constitutional revision committee which proposed the restrictive preamble.

Asked if he quarreled with the National Council of Churches which also restricts active membership to congregations which will affirm Christ as Saviour, Rev. Pease answered negatively. He explained that he regarded the Andover Council as a more informal body, one with "minimal structure for cooperative action." His feeling is that it functioned effectively in this manner and should remain nonexclusive.

Rev. Bruce VanBlair of West Parish Church and two delegates from his congregation also withdrew from last week's session. Voting favorably on the constitution was the majority of some 40 members, four delegates plus a minister from participating churches. Under the new constitution each church will send but lay delegates to Council meetings. Rev. Munson expressed his reaction to the Council decision this way: "I am very disappointed in the council, especially in these days of ecumenism. I had hope that with religions striving to work closer together we might cooperate with other religious organizations in the community for the promotion of moral and social welfare." He said he regarded the adoption of the restrictive preamble as a step backwards.

A spokesman for the Massachusetts Council, asked to comment, said that the state has no restriction on membership but there is an official statement that the purpose of the council "shall be to serve as the statewide cooperative organ of the constituent members in fulfilling their responsibilities for the Christian ministry in the Commonwealth."

The question of Unitarian membership has proved a thorny one at the state level too, he said. There are annual moves by some to adopt the National Council's preamble. Unitarian congregations were members of a state federation that proceeded the council and the decision then was to continue the association, the state councilman said.

A further complication, said one local churchman, is the fact that at national, state and local levels there are many who feel that the council's first concern should be the unification of all Christian religions. There is a gradual strengthening of relationships between Protestant and Catholic churches, which would be disrupted, he said, if the organization took a less firm Christian position.

Some people are prone to complain that five dollars doesn't buy enough antibiotics to fill an outsize thimble. This is rather shortsighted thinking in that the worth of medicine should be measured in terms of effectiveness rather than bulk.

It was only three decades ago, for instance that lobar pneumonia was a costly as well as serious illness. The patient spent weeks in a hospital, sometimes in an oxygen tent, and considerable nursing and attention from the doctor were required.

Today, however, barring complications, pneumonia is cleared up in a matter of days, hospitalization is seldom required, and the whole unpleasantness is little more inconvenient than a severe cold.

Inconvenience is never a problem at our pharmacy. Our complete prescription department is your assurance of immediate attention to all your needs. In making this announcement, Headmaster William Harding said that various organizations in the Greater Lawrence Community and at least one national group is interested in making available to the youngest children with undeveloped resources the opportunity to adapt easily to the first years of formal schooling. A Wide Horizons experiment in this field is now in progress at Free Church Cooperative Pre-school.

Now Pike will make its facilities available for summer program which will help children from needy families to compete successfully with their more fortunate classmates when they enter kindergarten or first grade next fall, Harding said.

This objective, said Harding, is not new to Pike where the student body is already highly diversified in terms of national origins. The summer plans will, however, greatly expand the opportunity for developing understanding between the races, he added.

In its second year, the pre-school summer session stresses the customary habits of coopera-

Two sets of footprints and a suspicious car are police clues in the investigation of a profitable weekend house break at 508 S. Main St.

Michael A. Staszkiewicz's home was ransacked Saturday and cash and other items taken while he was within a few feet of the house tending his gasoline service station.

Sometime after 12:35 p.m., when Mrs. Staszkiewicz left the house by a rear door, and 6:27 p.m., someone entered the house and made off with $115 in cash, a small coin box containing about 20 silver dollars, a German cuckoo clock and other articles.

Also under investigation: the theft of $37 from the wallet of Elizabeth Cahoon, a junior high school teacher who left it on the window sill in her classroom Friday during the dismissal interval; and the mid-night theft Saturday of two wheels from Jack Tanner's automobile where it stood in his drive at 10 Charlotte St.

Ingenuous thieves hoisted the car onto two milk cases found nearby.

Bylaw Ignored In W. Andover

Sarkis Krikorian, 127 Greenwood Rd., admitted to the Zoning Board of Appeals Thursday that he has been operating a landscaping business in a residential zone, in defiance of zoning bylaws.

The West Andover resident told the board he farmed the land until 1948 or so and then started his present business, now his only occupation. He is seeking permission to build a $15,000-$20,000 garage to house heavy equipment which is left in the open on his property, a situation that has caused neighbors to complain during the past year.

A dozen residents of the area appeared at the hearing to suggest that Krikorian be required to move his equipment for storage on industrial land. Atty. Richard A. Savran, representing the landscaper, said however that the price Krikorian would have to pay for such land would force him out of business.

The board took this petition and two others under advisement.

Florence E. O'Hara has asked for a variance to approve a lot at 10 Lincoln St. which has less than the required frontage footage.

A request for a variance came also from Joan I. Petrie who, with her husband, wishes to divide a lot at 86 Poor St., building a small home for personal use and selling the present house. Neither lot would have the required frontage.

Youth Center Art Exhibited

On exhibit at Memorial Hall are paintings done by students at Andover Youth Center instructed by Mrs. Elizabeth Plare.

Near the end of its class season, the Youth Center is offering just two new opportunities for training this term.

Girls interested in weight lifting may obtain information at the center, and those who would like to enroll for a six-week session Judo Class should do so immediately.

Instruction will end for the vacation season on April 30. Center officials estimate that they have had 750 active members participating through the school year. They reported expanded interest in basketball (more teams) and swimming and success in several areas due to help from Andover Society in supplying instructors for a number of special interest groups.

item being bought is ok'd and within the scope of the appropriation of a given department's budget. To sell to the town without this authorization is to risk refusal of payment unless a genuine, 11th hour emergency exists.

Once the kinks in this procedure are ironed out, the manager plans more rigid inventory controls. Bids on decals to mark all town property will be taken later this week and to tighten the control on such consumables as tires, batteries etc. The manager wants department heads to know just when and where "perishables" of this type are used.

Required too will be performance bonds on highway materials, for example. The purpose: to see that the town is delivered just what it has contracted for.

All these new controls, says the manager, will serve to protect the town.

Economic Understanding

Since when is "speculator" a dirty word? Since when is it synonymous with "unscrupulous" and "dishonest?"

Inferences that the latter are adjectives aptly applied to the former were made at Town Meeting last month by opponents of various proposals which could involve personal profit. This somewhat blanket labeling of the man who is willing to gamble on economic success cannot help but disturb those concerned with the deteriorating appreciation for what it is that drives the wheels of modern commerce — the profit motive.

Take as a case in point the attitude toward Harry Axelrod's vetoed request for re-zoning of residential land adjacent to Sheraton Rolling Green Motel to permit construction of a shopping center.

Insinuating sneers met the developer's statement that he sold land opposite the motel, which WAS zoned for a shopping center, to the U. S. General Services Administration because the federal government insisted, and they further insinuated that he had certainly made a tidy profit on the transaction. And why not? Since bartering was discarded as a means of exchanging goods, what else has anyone hoped for from a business transaction?

This is not intended as a defense of Harry Axelrod or his shopping center proposal. Certainly the townspeople are under no obligation to re-zone anything for the mere convenience of land speculators.

What we do decry is the apparently far too prevalent notion that there is something intrinsically shady about speculation and speculators.

There is a certain irony in this attitude in a Town that has mushroomed into a highly touted residential community since World War II because of the activities of real estate speculators. An estimated 75 percent of the new homes built in Andover are built on speculation. Last year alone roughly 130 were constructed by contractors who speculated that they could turn a profit.

There is additional irony in the fact that the same Town Meeting which listened to a deprecation of some forms of speculation, heard accolades for Contractor C. Lincoln Giles who is, by his own admission, a speculator who has accomplished what he has in downtown face-lifting by transforming white elephants into profits.

By strictest definition, a speculator is one who buys with the expectation that he can later sell what he has acquired for a better price than he paid.

But the fact is that there is an element of speculation in every business venture, and it is the men who are willing to speculate — to take risks and gamble on the rewards — who create jobs for the less venturesome.

Major misconceptions about how the American economic system functions, and must function to remain free, are widespread; the business community is just beginning to learn how widespread.

The Lawrence Chamber of Commerce recently quizzed some 200 teenagers participating in a preparation-for-work program to gain some insight into their level of economic understanding. Sixty-two percent of them answered that they believe it is the responsibility of the federal government to see that everyone who is willing to work has a job.

Fifty-three percent of them said that they believe most business firms could raise their wages 10 cents an hour without raising prices. Fifty-five percent indicated they believe most business firms could cut their prices 10 percent and still make a reasonable profit; 45% said they feel that owners of business in this country get too large a percent of the company's sales dollar compared with what employees are paid.

In a similar "test" of 115 high school students in Virginia last year 73 percent said they believe owners benefit more than employees from the increased productivity made possible by the installation of new equipment. Eighty-six percent said the government should take steps to keep wage rates from falling in hard times.

These attitudes unfortunately mirror those of a large segment of the adult population and are the reason it is important to point out that to speculate honorably is in the best interests of the American tradition.

"I have but one system of ethics for men as for nations. Moral duties are obligatory on nations as on individuals. It is strangely absurd to suppose that a million human beings, collected together, are not under the same moral laws which bind each of them separately."

Stories and appropriate activities will also center on the Easter theme. Mothers of the LL's are cooperating to make the event a pretty and memorable one for the pre-schoolers.

Miss Elizabeth Russell, Supervisor of work with children, plans to tell three stories to the boys and girls of school age when they meet in the Children's room at 3:30 p.m., April 8. Her theme, "Easter Time," is being developed through a tale of a selfish giant by Oscar Wilde which is a spring time story with added significance at Easter. She has selected also "Mr. Easter Hare" which is about the first Easter rabbit and the first Easter eggs. Her third story is "Frosty's Easter eggs." From now until Easter, an egg tree will grow in the children's room, complete with silver branches and holiday color.

Next Tuesday, April 13, the Squirrels group of pre-school boys and girls will hear Miss Russell at their program in the Children's room at the usual time - 10 a.m.

Andover Reads More?

It could be that more people are doing more reading here than they were a year ago. At any rate nearly two thousand more books and pamphlets, maps and leaflets were charged out to Andover residents this year than they took out a year ago at this time.

Lately the staff members who have seriously consulted their various crystal balls to determine what library visitors would like to read next have noted that their special collections of choice titles have vanished with gratifying speed. Altogether the main library mounted 24 displays and special collections during the month of March. Some, like "Decisions - 65" had a different focus each week on a world problem. Some, system rather than encouraging strong leadership.

If there are any grievances that pertain to administrative or operational ability, they should be discussed openly. I am sure that the time to discuss problems, if they exist, is not on the night when the appointment is to take place, but a thorough investigation should be made as to the credibility of the facts and then decisions made on those facts and not on hearsay.

I strongly urge that a procedure be established to prevent, in the future, the kind of immature and unbusinesslike procedure that was displayed at the last School Committee meeting.

To the Editor of the Townsman:

Once again many people seem puzzled because so few bothered to vote in the last local election and far less attended town meeting. The cause is not difficult to define and then locate.

Town manager government is based upon the concept that somehow civic management can be made better by removing the people some distance from the politics inherent in the every day administration of their government. But that is impossible to accomplish because the cure, centralized government, has ever proved itself to be worse than the disease.

Moreover, whatever the good intentions, manager government does capitalize upon the assumed lethargy of the citizens and in doing so, induces actual lethargy. That, in turn, nurtures in the managers a desire for still more political power as witness our administration's ardent promotion of the same plan but now under the Under those circumstances, many citizens feel that they are paying a high price for management so why send good money after bad by using time at town meeting to rubber stamp its program. Other citizens, realizing that the form of government is not conducive to open decisions openly arrived at, decline to use time to attend. Still other citizens stay away for the reason, simple indeed, that all must be well because large sums of money are being paid and accepted for town management.

U.S. Boys Polishing Spanish In Barcelona

(A Townsman News Feature)

This morning 12 American boys crawled out of bed in Barcelona, Spain, ate a Spanish breakfast with a Spanish family and raced off to the Instituto de Estudios Norteamericanos to partake of another day of education with a Spanish accent.

The boys, all 12, are prep and high school juniors enrolled for Phillips Academy's initial venture with a program called Schoolboys Abroad. The purpose: a year of intensive study of the Spanish language and culture.

Superficially the whole project sounds like a magnificent intellectual lark. Imagine beginning the school year billeted in a place with a name like the "Pension Garcia Ramos" a short run away from the summit of Mount Tibidabo which over looks Barcelona and the Mediterranean Sea.

Imagine a mid-year vacation touring the caves of Altamira where pre-historic men lay on their backs 20,000 years ago to make carbon sketches of primitive animals on the low, rough, rock ceilings.

... Or a stop at the "huge, awesomely austere" fortress that was a 16th Century pentagon for Spain, the place where plans were laid for the amassing of the Spanish Armada ... a drive along the Cantabrian Coast, through Bilbao and on to San Sebastian, once the summer home of kings and nobility and now the Spanish "Cannes". It is the painless and most satisfactory way to absorb history and culture. But Phillips' schoolboys are confronted with a great deal more.

They are at work stretching U. S. classroom Spanish to cover confrontations with native-born instructors as well as extra-curricular situations. They are busy keeping abreast of junior-year requirements so that they can return as full-fledged seniors. And they are caught up in the problems of lay diplomacy that go with residency in a foreign community and home.

Along on the study trip are two Phillips boys, two Exeter boys, a half-dozen from assorted preparatory schools and two public high school students. Among them is Stephen M. Foster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Foster, 10 Smithshire Estates, on leave from Holderness School, Plymouth, N.H.

Clark A. Vaughn, experienced teacher, traveler and author of two Spanish texts, is director of the educational expedition. He is assisted by Daniel D. Olivier, a Phillips' English instructor who is fluent in both French and Spanish. Completing the U. S. staff is mathematics instructor Edmond E. Hammond Jr., an Andover native, Academy graduate and member of the Phillips' faculty since 1953. The director's wife, a registered nurse with school experience, is in charge of health supervision.

The boys have three academic classes each school morning and one each afternoon, plus athletics. As part of their English course, which is full preparation for senior or advanced placement exams, the teenage students are given the added assignment of keeping a journal which is checked weekly, shared with the class and pruned for publication in a monthly newsletter for parents and state-side school papers.

But what they couldn't get at home is the arduous experience of sitting in on lectures delivered in Spanish by instructors born to speak the tongue. Dr. Emilio Giralt of the University of Barcelona is teaching the boys modern European history with special emphasis on Spanish history from the unification of Spain to the end of the Spanish Civil War. Two other native instructors are in charge of Spanish language and literature courses.

The Journals

It is through their journals, as they wrestle with mature judgment about what they observe and experience and reflect the sheer, naive delight of new-born travelers, that one can learn most about what effect a winter in Spain will have on 12 American youths. In one issue, Stephen Foster describes an evening with a Spanish family - a mother, a son and an ancient aunt. He learns that in Spain narrow streets and "oppressive, unlit archways" offer little

The patrons are getting restless too... Many, probably impatient with the gradual change, are trying to force it into a rush by neglecting to wear their overcoats even though it is still sometimes quite brisk outside."

Meanwhile, back at Phillips, Edward M. Harris, executive officer for Schoolboys Abroad is laying plans for a second Schoolboys Abroad - a return to Spain. An enrollment of approximately 30 is sought. approach of fair weather, "it's definitely not spring yet, but the awkward period of change between the two seasons when after five or six days of clear, relatively warm weather, the proprietor of a sidewalk cafe on the Rambles might seriously contemplate the removal of the temporary glass walls that were put into place last November to shelter the tables... The people are getting restless too... Many, probably impatient with the gradual change, are trying to force it into a rush by neglecting to wear their overcoats even though it is still sometimes quite brisk outside."

Meanwhile, back at Phillips, Edward M. Harris, executive officer for Schoolboys Abroad, is laying plans for a second Schoolboys Abroad - a return to Spain. An enrollment of approximately 30 is sought. Under various plans, scholarships are available and a number of this year's students are taking advantage of them.

If, with another term, the program can become self-supporting, Phillips will take on France!

Shirley Barnard and Phillips Bergstrom have returned to Mitchell academy, Billerica to resume their studies after enjoying the Easter vacation in town.

The fire department was called out yesterday afternoon about two o'clock to extinguish a brush fire on the land of John W. Henderson in the Abbott district. The fire burned over about 10 acres of wood and grass land and in several places threatened the buildings on neighboring farms. Hard work of the residents of that section with the assistance of the firemen was necessary to extinguish the flames. The auto chemical made quick time to the scene, the seven-mile run being made in about 15 minutes.

Zoning Board OK's Projects

A 50 unit addition to Sheraton Rolling Green Motor Inn, a recreational area next to it and the construction of a nursing home off Main St. have all been authorized by decisions of the Zoning Board of Appeals.

Going into the new wing at the Lowell Street motel will be sleeping units, a bath house, an indoor swimming pool and an enlargement to present banquet and kitchen facilities.

The present lobby is to be turned into a coffee shop, and the enlargement will also permit additional meeting rooms and a beauty shop.

On single-residence land adjoining the motel, Sheraton will now be able to lay out a three par golf course, and a small skating and ski area for motel guests. Such recreational use of residential land is permitted on 50 acre plots, but a variance was necessary to permit its development on 40.6 acres.

If final plans for a contemplated nursing home meet state requirements and that of the Zoning Board, Schlott Realty Co., Inc. will be given the variance necessary to permit its construction on five and one third acres in the industrial zone adjoining Shawsheen Plaza. The property is to be sold to Walter P. Hughes of Andover who operates Town Manor Nursing Home in Lawrence.

The board also released a decision Monday permitting Friendly Ice Cream Corp. to erect a free-standing sign at the site of its new ice cream parlor now under construction on Main St.

Philharmonic Performs Well

The Merrimack Valley Philharmonic Orchestra warmed to the professionalism of Violin Soloist Richard Burgin Sunday in a proficient performance of Mendelssohn's difficult Violin Concerto in E Minor.

The warmth of the concerto's major themes brought response from the orchestra and the near-capacity audience at Andover High School Auditorium.

Soloist Burgin is a commanding performer, technically skilled and poised. The authority he lent to his interpretation of Mendelssohn, particularly the moving Allegro molto appassionato, drew the symphony into its best performance of the afternoon.

The fact that the orchestra's some 70 members are part-time musicians who play for the love of it was evident in their near-professional performances of selections by Wagner, Mozart and Brahms. They displayed particular strength in the cello, viola, reed instrument and percussion sections.

Concertmaster Domenic Teoli led a strong violin section through numerous demanding passages, their only real weakness showing in the lighter, closely timed movements, particularly of Mozart's Symphony No. 38 in D Major.

Conductor Joseph A. Ierardi led the musicians with a controlled technique, revealing the studied skill that has made the orchestra into a quality musical organization in four years time.

HOW WE MAKE SURE you get your clothes when you want them

Genuine cleanliness is a time-consuming, skill-demanding task. It does not just "happen" in one or two mechanical operations. It begins almost the minute you leave your clothes and shirts at our counter. From that moment on, your clothes start their journey to a new kind of clean immaculate, revitalized newness that is exclusively ours.

We almost never fail to meet your busy schedule. We do it with a unique system of red and white sacks. Clothing and shirts put into the white sacks get regular-scheduled care. In many plants we use our own "pre-assembly system" where your garments are hung on individual hangers from the moment you bring them to us over the counter. For example, clothes left Monday will be ready Thursday. Clothes left Tuesday will be ready Friday. And Wednesday's order will be ready Saturday. The Red "Speed" sacks get the orders that will be ready "Today or Tomorrow." These urgent drycleaning requests are accepted up to 3:00 P.M. daily - Saturday till noon - without extra charge.
